Hypertension Volume 24
Published as Supplement

"Hypertension: Neural, Vascular and Hormonal Factors," Volume XXIV in the Hypertension series, has been published as a supplement to CIRCULATION RESEARCH. Edited by Jay N. Cohen, M.D., the 128-page paperback publication is the Proceedings of the AHA Council for High Blood Pressure Research meeting Oct. 8-9, 1975 in Cleveland.

Papers deal with neural control of the circulation, vascular smooth muscle function and the role of arterial pressure in the development of hyperplasia and atherosclerosis. Other topics include the effects of volume and electrolyte changes in blood pressure and reexamination of the renin-angiotensin system. Newest work on angiotensin III and the controversy over its role in mediating the adrenal effect of angiotensin is summarized.

Copies may be obtained from the Distribution Department, AHA National Center, Dallas.

September Articles Listed for Two AHA "Concepts"

Current Concepts of Cerebrovascular Disease/Stroke: "Intrinsic Factors in the Control of the Cerebral Circulation" by Rafael Rubio, M.D. and Robert M. Berne, M.D.

NHLBI Begins New Grants for Young Investigators

A new grant program for young research workers has been opened by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. Applications for the Young Investigator Research Grant Program will be accepted until Nov. 1, 1976 for grants to start July 1, 1977.

The program is "designed to encourage young investigators ... to develop their research interests and capabilities." By helping to bridge the transition from training to productive investigator this research grant program "will provide the initial independent support for talented young scientists," the announcement said.

Grants will be given for up to three years for a total of $90,000 direct costs. Recipients must be without NIH support other than for training or fellowships and must have a doctoral degree and prior research experience.

Additional information can be obtained from the staff of the NHLBI program in the area where the research is planned or by phoning 301-496-7225.

Lung Association Invites Fellowship Applications

The American Lung Association is offering training fellowships for physicians interested in academic careers in prevention and control of lung disease. Applicants must be in the second or later year of residency in specialties relevant to lung disease or in scientific investigation. In addition, the Association is offering Edward Livingston Trudeau Fellowships to physician instructors in medical schools who wish to stay in academic medicine. Applications must be received by October 1, 1976 at the American Lung Association, Director of Medical Affairs, 1740 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019.
