Grants-in Aid Awards Are Announced by AHA

New and continuing Grants-in-Aid for 1978-79, totalling $4.9 million, have been announced by the American Heart Association. This will increase total estimated research spending by the National Center and 55 affiliates to more than $20.2 million for the year.

The grants covered 97 new projects and continued 170 more from last year. These were in addition to several hundred junior and senior rank scientists sponsored by AHA for work in basic science and cardiovascular disease. Approximately 1,400 investigators throughout the country will receive support from affiliates.

AHA research support since 1949 now totals more than $320 million.

(The list of Grants-in-Aid is published in November CIRCULATION, News from the American Heart Association section.)

About 14,000 physicians, investigators, nurses and other health workers are expected to attend the 4-day scientific sessions where approximately 1,000 papers, lectures, symposia, "How To" and cardiovascular conferences, and Postgraduate Seminars will be scheduled days and some evenings. Also part of the sessions will be the CV Nursing sessions and the meetings of the National Conference on Thrombosis & Hemostasis.
